STUDY BACKGROUND

The Client is re-launching one of their chocolate brands in India, focusing on building equity with a 3% market share in chocolates. The recent campaign aimed at boosting brand awareness, and Markelytics proposes to assess its effectiveness in terms of ad reach, brand recall, and impact on salience and other metrics in a cluttered market

BUSINESS OBJECTIVE

To gauge the success of the recent ad campaign of the chocolate brand in terms of ad reach, brand recall, and its effectiveness in building brand awareness and other key metrics

RESEARCH OBJECTIVE

To assess the impact of the Client's ad campaign on brand awareness for various chocolate categories, current purchase behavior, brand preferences, brand choice influencers, ad diagnosis, and consumer profiles across different regions

SAMPLE SIZE

400

TIMELINE

25 days
(excluding weekends/holidays)

TARGET RESPONDENT

- Age: 15 – 40 yrs
- Gender: Females and Males (50:50)
- NCCS A/B
- Branded chocolate consumers who have bought/consumed in the last 1 month and consume at least once a month

METHODOLOGY ADOPTED

Online – Self-completed Surveys, Stimulus Testing with unbranded/muted video

OPERATIONAL CHALLENGES

1. Age group targeting below 18 in the online panel is not feasible
2. Variants/sub-brand recall challenges

OUR APPROACH TO OPERATIONAL CHALLENGES

1. Suggest capturing unaided brands at both parent and sub-brand levels
2. Use logos/chocolate pictures in aided questions for better recall

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Markelytics proposes a comprehensive post-campaign evaluation for the chocolate brand, assessing the impact on brand awareness, purchase behavior, and consumer preferences across key cities in India. The research aims to provide actionable insights for the Client to optimize future marketing strategies. The study includes detailed analysis and reporting, emphasizing a holistic approach to address operational challenges for accurate results
